Unprotected strike at Harmony's Kusasalethu mine

Harmony Gold Mining Company Limited ('Harmony' or 'the Company') advises that employees at the Company's Kusasalethu mine near Carletonville have embarked on an unprotected strike.

Graham Briggs, chief executive officer of Harmony commented, "We have experienced management teams in place who have good relationships and established communication channels with their respective union structures. We urge our employees to honour existing collective agreements entered into through the Chamber of Mines as well as existing bargaining structures. I encourage all employees who have embarked on this unlawful strike to act in a safe, responsible and peaceful manner, and to engage through the established lawful channels."
